Italian I Overview

Italian I is a course for students of Italian as a Foreign Language with emphasis on listening, comprehension and speaking, and with an introduction to reading and writing in Italian, as well as cultural elements of the Italian speaking world. Students learn foundational structure and syntax including everyday vocabulary. Students will work toward the improvement of pronunciation and interactive communication. By the conclusion of this course, students are prepared to take the Italian II Course.

Philosophy:
The mission of the World Languages/ESL Program is to have all students function competently in a language other than their own and to be able to interact and communicate with members of other cultures while gaining a greater understanding of and respect for the cultural perspectives, practices, and products of different countries.
GOALS

The goals of the World Languages program are as follows:

All students will communicate at a level of literacy in a language other than English. This means that all students will:

- Develop the ability to understand the spoken language;
- Communicate orally in the language;
- Develop the ability to extract and interpret information through reading;
- Develop the ability to communicate in writing; and
- Develop an appreciation for basic behavioral, cultural, and linguistic patterns of the language community, whether abroad or in the United States.

All students will recognize the interrelationship between language and culture for at least one world language other than English.

This means that all students will:

- Gain greater insight and appreciation for the English language and American culture through the study of another language;
- Understand how language works;
- Improves the ability to understand career opportunities related to the study of other cultures;
- And, gain greater personal satisfaction as a citizen of the world.

Language study provides insight into the culture of another country. The acquisition of another language focuses attention on how language and culture interact. The interaction helps students reflect on cultural patterns and thus gain insight into their own language and culture. Exploration of a new culture helps students to frame issues about their own worldview while investigating another. Comparing and contrasting languages and cultures promote cross-cultural discourse and understanding, which are at the heart of the humanities.

Learning Goal

NJCCCS & CPI

- Identify the type of fruit described based on simple oral and/or written descriptions.
- Exchange information using words, phrases, and short sentences practiced in class on meals of the day.
- Present cultural products and imitate cultural practices related to food as found in age- and level-appropriate, culturally authentic materials orally or in writing.
- Use digital tools to exchange basic information at the word and memorized-phrase level related to food preferences.

Enduring Understanding

- Italians eat particular items at each meal, for the most part quite different from what we eat in the US.
- Students will recognize the items and be able to compare with what we eat.
- Combine “partitives” with articles to indicate “some” in Italian. Students will use these to demonstrate how much of a food item is desired when in a restaurant or at the supermarket.
- The amount and types of food eaten at different meals varies across the communities, cultures and cultural diversity, which factor into socioeconomic and environmental constituents.

Essential Question

- What is the appropriate way to order at a restaurant?
- What foods are needed for a recipe?
- What does one need to say in order to buy food at the grocery store?
- What is eaten at each meal in Italy?
- How do we express the concept of “some” in Italian?
- How do eating habits change across communities and cultures? Why?
